- What TOEFL graders know that you don't
- Your essay might be good, but will it score high?
- See your essay through the eyes of an expert
- There's a hidden checklist for the TOEFL essay
- Decode the TOEFL Writing section

Body: Hi [First Name],

There's a huge difference between writing a "good" essay and writing a high-scoring TOEFL essay.

You can have excellent vocabulary and grammar, but still get a disappointing score. Why? Because TOEFL graders follow a specific, internal checklist—and most students have no idea what's on it. They look for specific patterns in organization, development, and coherence that aren't taught in standard English classes.

You might be writing a great essay that, unfortunately, fails the test.

This is your chance to get behind the curtain. The TOEFL iBT Essay Evaluation Service connects you with experienced instructors who know this checklist inside and out. They analyze your essay using the same lens as an official grader.

Here is the insider knowledge you will gain:

- Discover Your "Hidden" Errors: Our experts are trained to spot the common mistakes that students are blind to—the ones that quietly lower your score point by point.
- Learn the Scoring Formula: The detailed feedback you receive on criteria like Organization and Development isn't just criticism; it's a roadmap showing you exactly what to do to meet the test's requirements.
- Get an Expert Score Estimate: Move beyond guessing. You'll get a realistic score from a professional, giving you true insight into your current abilities and what you need to do to improve.

Stop trying to guess what the graders want. Let an expert show you.
